Odessa, Texas — Clean Air Attainment City

Odessa, Texas is the right place for quality, clean air especially with companies that are increasingly aware of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) programs to improve air quality in non-attainment cities. The EPA has ambient air quality standards for six major air pollutants and Odessa achieves attainment in all six areas.

Basically, the West Texas area enjoys their clean air attainment status for a number of reasons, and companies looking to expand or relocate will also enjoy the benefit of that status. As an oil and gas producing city, we are extremely proud of our attainment status and we are eager to welcome new business to our area.

The EPA's 1990 Clean Air Act provides economic incentives to businesses through credits for cleaning up pollution. Not only do we have clean air and limitless opportunities, but we are geographically positioned for growth with an industrial park adjacent to Interstate 20 and an international airport only minutes away. If you're thinking about relocating or expanding, take a long look at Odessa.
